Crawford County Sheriff Harold Hatfield, and Grayling police chief Pete Stephan announced receipt of videotape (TV) equipment this week, valued at $1,300 per set.

The equipment was made available by grants from the state Office of Criminal Justice Programs, working with the Northeast Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, according to Hatfield and Stephan.

Ralph Eskuri, law enforcement projects coordinator with Northeast Regional Commission, said the equipment is used for training police personnel. He said the sets consist of videotape playback units and color television receivers. In use, prerecorded training programs are played back in a manner similar to a tape recorder, except that the information is presented in both picture and sound. He added that the sets will produce black and white as well as color, depending on the information recorded on the tapes.

Training for both departments will be set up by Richard Szymoniak of Alpena Community College, working with Stephan and Hatfield as well as with other departmental heads throughout the eight-county Northeast Region.

Both officials said requests for the equipment originated at the department level and were approved by the city council and county board of commissioners. In each case, the cost to the city or county is $108, Eskuri said.

According to Eskuri, five other law enforcement agencies in the region will receive similar equipment this week. They are: Alcona County, City of Cheboygan, City of Alpena, Montmorency County and Oscoda County.

2 Drown in Lake Margrethe

The search for the body of Calvin Lott, 16, of Brethren, in Lake Margrethe continued Tuesday morning by Crawford County Sheriff's deputies that started last Friday evening, when a boat capsized with 3 men in it.

Daniel Dean, 19, also of Brethren, the lone survivor, was able to swim a shore at Eagle Point when the boat went under, and summoned help.

The small, 12-foot fishing boat capsized when a rain squall came up, and the men were headed for shore, about 10:45 p.m., Sheriff Harold Hatfield said.

The body of Bruce Dean, 28, of Grayling was recovered Sunday evening at 5:00 p.m. by divers in about 20 feet of water, and 20 to 12 feet from the boat, Hatfield said.

Inclement weather since the incident has hampered the search.

Besides 3 skin divers of the local Sheriff's Marine Patrol, Sheriff Hatfield has received assistance from 3 divers from the Roscommon Sheriff's department, 2 from the Michigan State Police and 1 from Montmorency County. The divers have been alternating, 6 to 8 hours daily, in their search.

Along with the divers, and Crawford County deputies handling the shore radio equipment, helicopter pilots of the National Guard, and Grayling City Police Chief, Pete Stephan, flying a private plane, covered the lake by air in conjunction with the water crafts.

Sheriff Hatfield said Tuesday morning, he has received help from many citizens, in both equipment and manpower, during the four day search for the bodies.

Bruce Dean's obituary appears on page 10.

Cleveland Needs Grayling Brochure

Because of a 4-column spread on Hartwick Pines which appeared in the "Cleveland Plains Dealer," the primary newspaper of Cleveland, Ohio, the Michigan Tourist Council Office of Cleveland was cleaned out of "Grayling Is Pleasure Country," and it was necessary for them to call the Grayling Regional Chamber of Commerce office and request a rush shipment of 2,000 more of these brochures.

Some 80,000 of the 1973-74 brochures were printed last September and Earl "Chum" Longworth, Chamber Executive Manager, estimates that approximately 15,000 copies are left for summer use in the Grayling region... and for emergency distribution such as the Cleveland case. Daily requests from Travel Centers of the American Automobile Club in Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana are being received in the Chamber office and lots of from 25 to 100 are being shipped.

The new 1974-75 Brochure is scheduled for printing in August.

Words and Principles

Politicians are said to practice the art of the possible, not the art of the plausible, but we nonetheless suspect that the nation's polity would benefit from clearer concepts of where politicians really stand.

For example, the word "liberal" in U.S. politics has come to be applied to folks whose ideas run pretty much counter to notions of individuality and economic freedom that define the word in most dictionaries. We admit to having accepted the usage ourselves, just so everyone will know who we mean, but we know full well that many "liberals" today are in fact statist, advocating policies that weaken the individual and strengthen the state.

The reverse of a "liberal" is said to be a "conservative," who supposedly upholds old-fashioned liberalism. Yet President Nixon, held to be a conservative, slapped wage and price controls on the U.S. economy in 1971. Some people might say that was statism too.

The President isn't being threatened with impeachment for that but for allegedly obstructing justice and sundry other offenses. The lawyers preparing the case against him are themselves sworn to uphold the law and thereby protect the rights of individuals.

Yet their own observance of the law hasn't been so meticulous either. Choice tidbits of evidence tending to incriminate the President have been leaking out of their investigations with studied regularity, well before being presented in any official, legal context.

We could perhaps go on and on, about those among the "consumerists" and "environmentalists" who seem to have more on their minds than helping the consumer or the environment, for example. Or perhaps about the state's mounting concern over everyone's "safety." But maybe we've made our point.

This point would seem to be that both the words and principles current around Washington are in need of some overhaul so that the public could have fewer euphemisms and a clearer idea of where politicians really stand. If that happened maybe that steadily ebbing public confidence in politics and government would reverse itself. As things stand now, the statist seem to be doing a pretty good job of undermining the state.

Economic Suicide

Many see the approaching congressional election as an opportunity for so-called liberals to take control and push ahead with new taxes on profits and on wealth. There will also, no doubt, be proposals for tighter regulation of basic industries in the United States. All programs will be advocated in the name of consumers.

Before leaping off this economic precipice, it would be well to observe what happened in Great Britain. Following that nation's last election, the government proposed boosts in the taxes of corporations and wealthy individuals. The stock market went into precipitous decline; and, according to Business Week, the question now is "...the possibility that the British stock market's function as a capital-raising mechanism for business—especially small and medium-sized companies—could be endangered."

Is this a preview of what will happen in the U.S. if a drive is launched to close all tax breaks that encourage investment and emasculate industrial management with regulation? Voters should look with fear at reformers whose chief targets are the industries and enterprises that are the source of jobs and the foundation of the American system.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

From Calvary Baptist Church

On Economic Corruption

Most of us are suspicious of economic corruption within our nation. The problem has been amplified by the current claim of wide spread shortages coupled with spiraling prices. Some people blame the labor unions, others the giant corporations and still others blame crooked politics. We shall speak of underlying principles, rather than these observable particulars.

Every country has an economic instrument of expansion. Ours is capitalism. This instrument of expansion is controlled by a system of rewards which creates an incentive for further invention and expansion. These rewards are paid from an accumulation of surplus within the system. The system begins to decay when someone starts hoarding the surplus, or when the system becomes "institutionalized." This has been a major factor in the downfall of every world power regardless of the particular economic system involved. The United States is now suffering from "institutionalization" or a hoarding of our surplus wealth.

There are only three basic approaches to resolve our current economic ills: 1) Reform the system. By this we mean to correct the abuses within the capitalistic system. This should be our ideal choice. 2) Circumvent the system. By this is meant to replace capitalism with another system such as socialism. Much effort is being exerted in this direction. 3) React to the system. By this is meant the intended destruction of capitalism with no thought of the future. A few radical groups have publicly voiced such goals.

The United States stands as a living monument to the world of what capitalism has done, and can do. We don't need another economic system. We need a return to the moral standards and attitudes which made our country great. Our economic problems come from an internal decay of our moral fiber.

We would suggest some Bible principles for corrective reform:

1. A MAN MUST WORK FOR WHAT HE GETS. "If any would not work, neither should he eat." 11 Thess. 3:10. With the exceptions of disability and old age, this rule should apply to every adult male or family head.

2. A MAN MUST GET WHAT HE WORKS FOR. "The labourer is worthy of his hire." Luke 10:7. God even applied this principle to animals, how much more to men. "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn." Deut. 25:4.

3. MAN IS RESPONSIBLE TO GOD FOR THE DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH. "Woe unto him that buildeth his house by unrighteousness, and his chambers by wrong; that useth his neighbor's service without wages, and giveth him not for his work." Jer. 22:13.

4. MEN SHOULD PRACTICE THE GOLDEN RULE IN ALL ECONOMIC RELATIONSHIPS. "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets." Matthew 7:12.

5. OUR ATTITUDES OF SELFISHNESS, GREED AND AFFLUENCE MUST BE REPLACED BY GOD-CONSCIOUSNESS, COMPASSION AND CONTENTMENT. "But godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows." 1 Tim. 6:6-10.

Jack Pine's Stump

This column has mentioned, throughout the years such diverse items as the Ausable River, Ausable Riverboats, My Keeper, a son who is equally happy in his waterbed as with a fly rod, and Irving Melsaac, railroad man, Booster Club official and unlicensed doctor of good will and good cheer at Mercy Hospital. Well, Friday it all came together when Mike, Irving and I took a trip in a riverboat down the South Branch. Mike was in front fishing, I ran the boat and Irving sat enthroned in a captain's chair in the middle, looking very regal indeed. It was supposed to be a fast paddle trip, ending at a private home almost twenty miles downstream. The only trouble we had would be when Mike would get hooked up on his backcast. Drop the paddle, grab the punt stick, brace your feet and hope your guts don't fall out. Three people in almost twenty four feet of boat in fast current has quite a bit of momentum, let me tell you. But Mike did catch a limit of fish and lost some good ones. We also ran across Everett Jones ("Jonesy" from the County Road Commission) and Elmer Neal, putting Elmer's recently purchased riverboat through its paces. Several times we met up. Lots of fun and one very moving moment at the Fisherman's Chapel. When we reached our destination, we were early and our hosts weren't home, so we sat around on the grass. Shortly a canoe rounded the bend and pulled over. Two teenagers and a younger boy who was holding a very bloody piece of shirt around a finger. Doc Melsaac washed the wound and bandaged it with materials from the house and arrangements were made to get the lad back to the adults in his group at Canoe Harbor. Thus we also managed to accomplish a Good Deed on top of an already perfect day.

JP.

The next day was as bad as the previous one was good. I had planned on taking the boat on down the South Branch with the idea of cutting a small passage through a massive white pine which had fallen across the river. I had the saw all fixed up, new rope and everything. And I even conned Dave Rutkowski into going along to fish and help. The rains the previous evening had added about two inches of water to the boat. So, after bailing it out, we loaded our gear, outboard motor, and extra gas and took off. Dave said he would run the saw. That was OK with me. The saw starts right up, and Dave just starts to cut when it quit. Several dozen pulls later, the rope came out. We had no tools, but managed, with the aid of a beer can opener and knife, to reinstall the rope. This time we couldn't even turn the engine over, and the rope broke again. To hell with it! I knew the people in the places around there and figured I could borrow a saw. After stumbling through a swamp I came to the grade. The first two places weren't occupied. The man in the third didn't have one, the caretaker at the fourth was in town and the caretaker at the fifth was a new face. I told him my problem. He asked who I was. When I told him, he replied, "Absolutely not!" I was stunned, but I did thank him anyway. People along the river just don't act like that. Except him. The owner of the sixth I don't think owned one, but he did offer sympathy. It was only at the seventh, and last, place that I had good luck. The caretaker said he had two, and to take my pick. Not only that, but his wife drove to the area where I had to cross the swamp to get to my boat and Dave. So Dave starts it up and begins to cut. Sixty seconds later the chain flew off. That did it. We just sat there and laughed. It was easier than crying. Somehow we got the boat across the log and went down to the Main Stream, then motored up to Wakeley Bridge without any problems at all. Which, considering everything else that had happened, was amazing. No one, but no one, can tear up two chain saws in 90 seconds of running. Except us. Mercy!

Personalized Plate Deadline Nears

Lansing — Michigan vehicle owners with a yen to give their license plates customized touch have only until the end of June to order their personalized license plates for 1975. Deadline to order the special license plates that carry individual identifications from initials, names, to pet slogans and sayings, is June 30. To encourage the sale of the personalized plates, Secretary Austin has urged his branch managers to place applications in various banks throughout the state. "It would be almost impossible for our branch managers to contact every bank in the state, but we have urged our managers to place the applications in the bigger banks and those near their operations," Austin said. Awarded on a first-come, first-serve basis, the personalized license plates cost $25 above the normal license plate cost. They will be mailed to owners after November 15, the date when all other plates go on sale. "Last year almost 4,000 Michigan motorists purchased these plates, many had fun with their sayings. They're too numerous to mention, but there are many Michigan drivers with very vivid imaginations," Austin said. Revenue collected from the sale is used for highway clean-up.

"Feds" Are Quick To Know Good Thing When They See It

The boys from the U.S. Internal Revenue Service are quick to know a good thing when they see it. Always on the sharp look-out for a fast buck, they have now decided that they want a cut of the revenue from Michigan's lottery, which netted about $62 million in its first year of operation. They contend that Michigan must hand over $21 million of the gross receipts from the lottery since it started late in 1972. They also say that Michigan's 8,000 lottery agents and 130 lottery system employees must purchase $50-a-year gambling stamps. Their contention is based on the fact that results of horse races are used in the final selection of top winners. This involved system was devised because the IRS told New Hampshire it could be used so individual winners could avoid paying the federal gambling tax on lottery proceeds. Lottery winnings are subject to the federal income tax but not the state tax in Michigan. The IRS may have a battle on its hands in trying to cut in on the lottery proceeds because nine states already employ the same system as Michigan to determine winners and Ohio, Illinois and Maine will join them later this year. If the IRS wins the fight, Michigan's lottery will be crippled just when it ranks first in the nation in gross and per capita income. Since the lottery went into operation in November, 1972, Michigan's general fund has netted almost $100 million - which is $100 million that did not have to be raised in taxes from Michigan residents. In addition, another $100 million has been returned to persons holding winning lottery tickets, including 12 millionaire winners. Unlike some states which have experienced declines in lottery income, Michigan's is still increasing. Last month was the best month since the lottery began. An average of almost six million tickets were sold each week making the sale for May almost 30 million tickets. The normal average weekly sale is 5.3 million tickets. Lottery officials are expecting another increase in July when a $1 lottery will be instituted to add to the present 50-cent ticket. They expect, however, that there will be some loss in sales when Ohio and Illinois get their lottery systems into high gear. Michigan officials and those of other affected states will meet within a few days with IRS officials in Washington to try to clear the air and convince the "feds" to keep their hands off the state lottery fund. In Michigan the money goes into the state's general fund to help finance state government.

ACTION Soars Past 100,000 In Enrollment of Volunteers

Washington, D.C.—ACTION has soared past the 100,000 mark in volunteer enrollment, agency Director Mike Balzano has announced. The agency began in 1971 with 22,830 volunteers in six programs brought together from other federal agencies. In less than three years, ACTION has increased both the size of its ranks and the number of its programs. Since its start, ACTION has added three new domestic programs: University Year for ACTION (UYA), ACTION Cooperative Volunteers (ACV), and the Senior Companion Program. ACTION volunteers are now serving throughout the United States, four territories and 69 developing nations. By far the fastest growing of the programs, RSVP has increased its numbers from zero in 1971 to nearly 65,000 today. ACTION's "youngest" child, the Senior Companion Program, is expected to begin operating in July, 1974. Similar to the Foster Grandparent Program in which older volunteers help children, the Senior Companion Program will enable low income men and women over 60 to provide care and companionship to adults, especially other elderly people in institutions, nursing homes and in private homes. ## The shadowed alumnus

A guy named Dick Sullivan just phoned and said I should write something about the St. Stephen alumni dance this year because I forgot to do it last year. Which is an unfair charge.

I did write about that dance last year, remember? It was held at the Port Huron Legion and I was the only 1940-50 graduate present who hadn't spawned at least 16 children. I danced every dance with a raincoat which, come to think of it, probably helped explain my barren state to curious classmates. A London Fog might be romantic but not when it has buttons in front and a rip in the back.

But last year's scintillating report was of no use to Sullivan because it came after the ball was over. He wants pre-party publicity to help swell the crowd. He probably has the raffle concession.

As a bona-fide graduate of St. Stephen's, Sullivan probably wants every alumnus to bring a can of peas or a bag of potatoes. As you enter the dance, you give your groceries to Sullivan. Later, his crew will sell you $1 raffle tickets on the food. If you're lucky, you might win back your own can of peas. Which you would be well advised to donate to the starving children in China or you'll never get to heaven. Raffle profits go into the alumni bail-bond fund.

This type of raffle might sound weird to a nonalumni. But that's exactly how the nuns kept St. Stephen's afloat during the depression. An 11th commandment said: "Thou shall not scream and pound the wall when thou children swipe thou canned ham and then say onto thou that thou must purchase tickets on thou ham or Father McCormick will excommunicate thou children from all recesses from this day on."

I attended St. Stephen's in the shadow of my big sister, Terrible

Jean. So did most of the students, for that matter. Jean is of such magnificent stature as to block the sun from entire cities. But my shadowed position was more than physical. It was a mental depressant for a young boy to be constantly compared to his big sister and found lacking.

She was what is usually described as a leader. She was always making speeches and leading scrap drives. I was a follower, so far behind that the scrap I collected for World War II was dropped on Cambodia.

Father McCormick always visited the school to distribute report cards. I still cringe at the memory of the day he finally wearied of handing me D's and E's. It was the same week that I'd playfully tripped a friend who crashed through a school window. Father McCormick looked at me over his glasses and gave a shattering appraisal of my worth which began like this: "You can't really be Jean Fitzgerald's brother. They must have made a mistake at the hospital..."

And it wasn't just brains. In the 9th grade I took my 90-lb body out for football. The coach treated me warmly and I was flattered until I learned his motive. He wanted me to help him convince Terrible Jean to play fullback.

But, as usual, I digress. I merely intended to follow Dick Sullivan's order and urge all St. Stephen alumni and spouses (no matter how much they might kick and scream) to be at the Port Huron Legion Friday, July 19, from 9 p.m. to Lord knows when.

I'll be there, although you probably won't see me. I'll be wrapped in a London Fog in the shadow of Terrible Jean the Leader who will win 1st prize for selling the most raffle tickets.

Platinum coins were circulated in Russia between 1828 and 1845. The 3-, 6-, and 12-ruble coins prove impractical because the price of the rare metal fluctuated too widely.

Some political moves open for questioning

Cynicism, it is said, is an occupational disease with newspaper people.

It shouldn't be that way, of course. Reporters, as with all folks, should give each new day a chance to start with sunshine rather than rain.

But alas. It is only infrequently so with reporters—especially those who are exposed to the political world. Maybe it's something in the water.

Why do reporters become cynics? Or better yet, why do they let their cynicism show, sometimes even wearing it as a badge of the profession they follow?

One reason is that political reporters become exposed to events like the decision of State Rep. Fred Stackable of Lansing to return to private life and private law practice, foregoing another crack at serving in the state legislature.

Stackable is a Republican, and his announced reason for not running again in 1974 is that it's too tough to serve as a Republican in a Democratic-controlled legislature. His minority party status, Stackable said, has given him "some very frustrating moments."

As a Republican in a Democratic house, he said, it is impossible to become chairman of any committee, and "without the power you are unable to point or direct the legislature in any direction."

Indeed, serving as a Republican in a topheavily Democratic house could be a mighty frustrating experience—if the Republican takes his job seriously and conscientiously tries to serve the people and accomplish good for the public.

So Mr. Stackable has a good point.

Another reason for his retreat from public service is the pay he noted.

He pointed out there has been no increase in his $17,000 salary since he took on the job in 1971; if he had "hired into Civil Service" with approximately the same salary and received the increases that the state has given other state employees, he would now be drawing "in excess of $25,000," Stackable claimed.

That's another point he makes well. But whether this is an indictment of tight-fistedness on legislative pay levels, or an indictment of indiscriminate folly in establishing other pay standards is open to serious debate.

What has all this to do with a newspaperman's cynicism? Up to this point, nothing.

The cynicism arises with the knowledge that in the 1972 election—the last time around the track—Mr. Stackable had to survive a recount to win election to the house, being returned to public service by a mere 76 votes.

With the cutting edge of Watergate this year, plus a lot of other intangible influences, there might logically be some question as to whether Mr. Stackable—or any Republican candidate—can carry the 58th district Stackable now represents.

Effectiveness? Compensation? Both very good points, and legitimate reasons for withdrawing from the campaign.

But so is survival. Then there's our good governor, the Hon. William G. Milliken.

According to recent reports, Gov. Milliken is preparing to ask the Legislature to put a $1 billion bond issue on the November ballot to provide seed money (it is reported) for a statewide transportation plan.

He, figures the program would help "the whole state of Michigan, including the Upper Peninsula." Milliken discussed it with Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, who according to reports, also thinks it's a good idea.

Although details are sketchy so far, apparently a good hunk of bond issue would go to help finance the massive $5 billion transit plan developed by the Southeast Michigan Transportation Authority for the seven-county area around Detroit.

Hmmm. Could this be an election year?

Cynicism? And why not?

Summer Workshop

On Saturday, June 29, the Roscommon Area Branch of AAUW will host the Summer Workshop for the Michigan Division of AAUW at the Roscommon High School. The meeting is scheduled to begin with coffee and registration at 9.

The keynote address will be given by the state division president, Mrs. Meg Brown of Petoskey. Mrs. Brown has chosen as her topic, "Why AAUW is Alive and Well." Members will be welcomed by Mrs. Mary Pence, Division 1st Vice President of Ferndale and Mrs. Dora Lantzsch, President of the Roscommon Area Branch. Welcoming guests on behalf of the schools will be Mr. Hans Lantzsch, Superintendent, Gerish Higgins School District.

Morning activities will include a number of Mini-Sessions or workshops on such topics as Legislation, the Community, Education, Program and Membership ideas.

The luncheon speaker is Mrs. Jean L. King, an attorney from Ann Arbor who will speak on the subject "What are Women's Rights Today?"

Local members of the branch are encouraged to participate in this workshop and a special invitation is extended to AAUW members from other branches who are vacationing in the area. Registrar for the day is Mrs. Margaret Bird of Roscommon and advance registration and luncheon reservations are recommended.

your week ahead BY DR. A.W. DAMIS

Forecast Period: June 23 to June 29

- ARIES Mar. 21 - Apr. 19 How's things going at the domestic front? According to your chart, outside commitments might clash with personal obligations. Stick close to home base, this week.
- TAURUS Apr. 20 - May 20 Please, don't relish the past. Let bygones be bygones. Most members of your sign are entering a period of provoking your mate or similar alliance.
- GEMINI May 21 - June 20 As a fresh breeze blowing through your mind, you are nearing an intellectual peak. Mentally, you Gemini, are sharply honed. It's "decision making" time!
- MOONCHILD June 21 - July 22 The planet Mars puts a raw edge on your general attitude. You might be too "pushy," this week. Meaning? You'll suffer the consequences, next week. Curb your arrogance!
- LEO July 23 - Aug. 22 Going too many directions; putting too many irons on the fire; splitting your talents. All this confusion and much, much, more is in the scheme of things.
- VIRGO Aug. 23 - Sept. 22 A gesture that can be translated into a romantic meaning . . . is coming your way. An unexpected emotional involvement is indicated, for many Virgos.
- LIBRA Sept. 23 - Oct. 22 We are never unkind, that is, according to our own light. Nonetheless, most members of your sign are inclined to neglect a loved one.
- SCORPIO Oct. 23 - Nov. 21 Changes you have long held in mind, concerning a member of the opposite sex, can now be introduced with a minimum of adjustment. The decision, of course, is up to you!
- SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22 - Dec. 21 This week is important. A member of the opposite sex will not reveal how they actually feel toward conditions—instead they will repeat what they've been told!
- CAPRICORN Dec. 22 - Jan. 19 You, Capricorn, secretly believe that a lie, sometimes, functions as well as the truth. In some cases, it does. This week, however, it won't.
- AQUARIUS Jan. 20 - Feb. 18 There's something questionable about a close associate's motives. A spoken compliment will have a "ring" of deceptiveness. Double your guard against a so-called "friend."

Open House At Wurtsmith Air Base

Wurtsmith AFB, Mich.—Doing its part to help Michigan residents know about their Air Force, conserve gas, and have an enjoyable weekend, Wurtsmith Air Force Base at Oscoda is planning an Open House on June 29.

Although, due to the fuel conservation program, there will be no aerial demonstrations, people visiting the base will be able to get a first-hand look at the giant B-52 Stratofortress, Strategic Air Command's heavy bomber, as well as the KC-135 Stratotanker used in mid-air refueling of the B-52.

In addition to Wurtsmith's B-52 and KC-135, a wide variety of other aircraft will be on static display for public viewing.

The base will open to the public at 11 a.m. and close at 5 p.m.

Throughout the day there will be displays of Air Force equipment manned by the men who work with it, films, refreshments booths and public entertainment.

The Security Police K-9 section will demonstrate for the public how patrol dogs are trained and used at Wurtsmith.

The public is invited to attend this Open House. No special procedures are required to enter the base during the day.

GEORGE A. SHAIBLE, SR., SERVICES HELD HERE

George A. Schaible, Sr., a resident of Grayling for 56 years, passed away at Grayling Mercy Hospital on 7 June 1974. He was born on 31 January 1888 at Lansing, Michigan, the fourth son of Christine and Conrad Schaible. He attended Lansing public schools and on 31 January 1912 married Etta M. Fletcher in Lansing. To this union were born two children, George A. Schaible, Jr., Personnel Officer of the Department of Military Affairs in Lansing, and one daughter, Mrs. Beverly Kinkert of Grayling.

Mr. Schaible worked as a plumber and steamfitter with his brother before beginning his career as an employee of the then State Military Establishment in Lansing on 26 February 1917. He was transferred to Camp Grayling in October, 1918 and his first temporary living quarters for himself and his family were a tent. From 1918 to 1931 Mr. Schaible worked at Camp Grayling as Assistant Camp Superintendent being promoted to Camp Superintendent in 1931 after the death of Henry Baughras. Mr. Schaible supervised the building of most of the mess-halls, latrines, barns, and storage buildings erected at the Camp during this period and considered it a great day indeed when electric power and sewage system were installed in 1928. His staff then increased from the original three men to include a plumber, carpenter, mechanic and Richard Lovely in his office. During his tenure of employment Mr. Schaible served under five Quartermaster Generals: Colonel Walter Rogers, Colonel LeRoy Pearson, Colonel Harry E. Loomis, Colonel Herbert F. Layle, and General R. D. McDonald. Mr. Schaible retired as Camp Superintendent on 31 January 1958.

Second in relation to his job interest was his interest in hunting, fishing, and conservation. His hunting companions were often Rube Babbitt, Otto Failing, and George Skingley, all Conservation Officers. Mr. Schaible initiated and built the first toboggan slide located on Division Hill, carrying the water by teams of horses to freeze the toboggan troughs. And many were the northern pike he caught while fishing Lake Margrethe.

Mr. Schaible also served for a period in the Michigan National Guard. He enlisted on 17 March 1908 and served until 2 March 1912. He served in Company H, 3d Regt and Btry B, 119th Field Artillery. Mr. Schaible was also a life member, Past Worshipful Master, and Secretary of Grayling Masonic Lodge No. 356. He was actively associated with the building of the present Masonic Temple in Grayling in 1930. He was also a life member of the I.O.O.F. In earlier years he regularly attended Michelson Memorial Church.

Surviving beside his widow, son, and daughter are two grandchildren, Scott and Kirsten Schaible of Freeland, one sister, Mrs. Clara Ryan of Lansing, nephews and nieces including one great niece, one great, great niece and one great, great, great niece.

Masonic pallbearers were George Hilton, Ernest Larson, Earl Burns, Elmer Fenton, Wesley Kumpula, Earl Woods. Honorary pallbearers were: Richard Lovely and Mr. Schaible's nephews, Arthur Mings and Jerry Cheesmond of Grand Lodge and Charles Hewitt of Warren. Officiating on 10 June were the Reverend Paul Frederick, assisted by the Reverend R. C. Puffer, emeritus. A Memorial Fund to be designated for the building of a new church will be established in care of Michelson Memorial Methodist Church.

EDITOR'S MAILBOX

Dear Mr. Jackie,

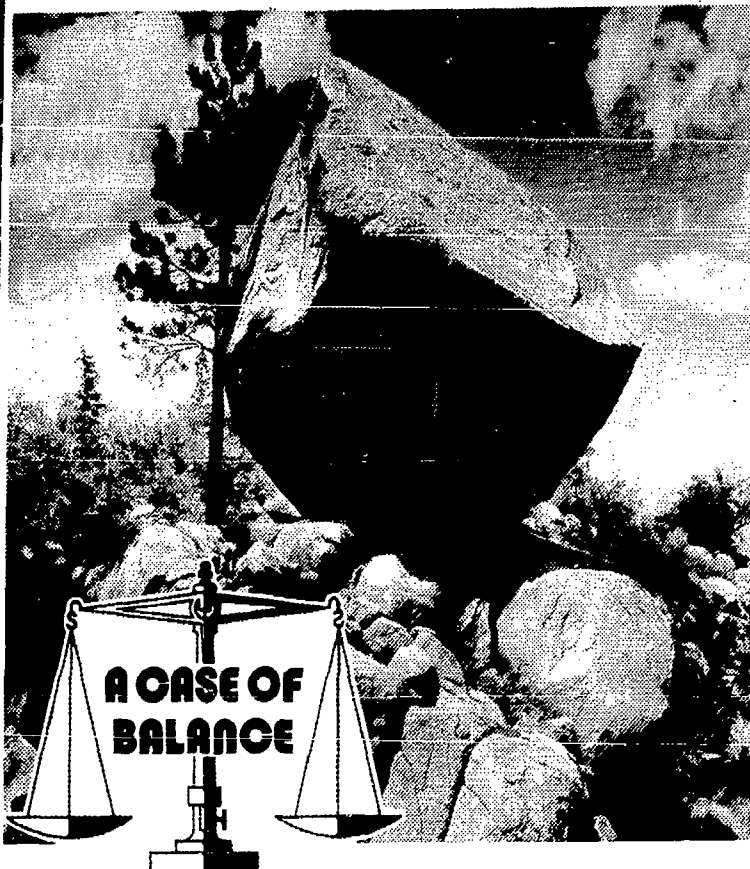

The American Flag is nothing more than a symbol with a background of sacrifice and symbolism. Without these characteristics the Flag of the United States makes about as much sense as the Eternal Flame that can be turned off at the whim of some individual.

The American Flag is nothing more than a mans love for his country and the tradition that made his country. P.S. The Flag that flies at Bear Mountain is for an unknown soldier. Tradition if it is okay with you, calls for it to fly forever at half-mast.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

You don't have to be a scientist to realize that these tons of rocks are held in check by perfect balance. You wouldn't want to be sitting nearby if they weren't!

This kind of balance results in inertia. There is another state of being that results in sound initiative and worthwhile action.

You've heard men speak of a balanced background, a balanced education, a balanced life. They're usually referring to the fact that no important element has been ignored or neglected.

Religious sincerity is one necessity for this kind of balance. It cannot take the place of any of the other essentials. Nor can anything else take its place. The Church is constantly helping us gain—and keep—our balance!

The Institute is one of a series presented during the year throughout the state by the Real Estate Program of the University of Michigan Extension Service and Graduate School of Business Administration. Courses in the program lead to a Certificate in Real Estate which is approved by the National Association of Realtors and the Michigan Association of Realtors, as meeting the academic qualification toward the Graduate, Realtors Institute (G.R.I.) designation. These courses also provide preparation for the licensing examinations for salesmen and brokers administered by the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation.

Topics covered in the week-long intensive courses included Real Estate Fundamentals and Organized Real Estate; Real Estate License Law and Civic Responsibility; Legal Aspects of Real Estate; Real Estate Marketing, Management, Investment, Construction, Finance, and Appraising.

Thanks

A special thanks to the Grayling Booster Club for making it possible with their generous donation to the Gray-Lee Judo Club which allowed six boys to attend the Midwestern Judo Tournament on 8 June, 1974. ## Lottery Bonus Drawing

Tickets went on sale Tuesday, June 18 for a two-week Lottery Bonus in which an estimated 72 winners will each collect the patriotic sum of $1,776.

A similar bonus - with only 12 winners - was conducted a year ago and "Fourth of July" bonus winners from last year remain unclaimed. Those tickets are still valid until July 5, 1974. The winning bonus numbers on July 5, 1973, were 539-026. A ticket for that drawing matching both numbers can still win $1,776.

The 1974 version of the "Fourth of July Bonus" will have six times as many winners because three bonus numbers will be drawn at the June 27 and July 5 (Friday) drawings. A ticket for the June 27 drawing matching two of the three June 27 bonus numbers will win $1,776. And, a July 5 ticket matching two of the three July 5 bonus numbers will win $1,776.

There should be 36 winners each week and the total of 72 winners will collect a total of $127,872.

The June 27 drawing will be held at the L. C. Walker Arena in Muskegon and the July 5 (Friday) drawing will be held at Cork Pine Fairgrounds in Vassar. There is no admission charge for attending lottery drawings.

Plans are in the final stages now for a new $1 lottery game to be introduced sometime during July. The 50 cent game will, of course, continue during the eight-week period during which the special $1 game is offered.

Details of the $1 game are scheduled to be released about July 1. Drawings for the $1 game will be held on Thursday afternoons, with drawings for the 50 cent game continuing at 9:45 a.m., Thursdays.

During the eight week sale of the $1 tickets, a built-in bonus for 50 cent ticket buyers is planned. Bonus winners will be involved in the determination of the winning numbers for the $1 game, while at the same time vying for cash prizes.

include Commerce and German. "We are extremely pleased to have Joe Schrader join Bear Archery, bringing with him the background and 17 years experience in personnel administration," stated Mr. Beatty. "Bear Archery, the world's largest manufacturer of quality archery equipment, experienced a 40% increase in sales in 1973 and sales in 1974 are expected to increase at a comparable rate. Due to this tremendous increase in sales we have hired approximately 350 persons over the last year bringing our total employment force to approximately 700. With this continuing increase in our work force, we feel very confident that Joe's experience in employee relations and personnel activities will contribute greatly to Bear's dramatic growth."

Schrader and his wife Carolyn have four children, Jeffrey, 12, Jay, 10, James, 8 and Jenna Joe, 1 and will be making their home in Grayling in the near future.

federal sources, is focusing on new barracks and mess halls. However, one noticeable addition this year is the new P.X. Building serving the camp.

It is expected that by 1978 summer camp all troops will be housed in all weather cinder block barracks.

Instrumental in this total building program is the work being done these two weeks by the engineer units at camp. The companies will be active in constructing new roads and parking lots, along with maintaining and improving existing firing ranges, ammo dumps and support facilities.

BG Radlike emphasized that the training program focuses on observing and implementing safety programs during all phases of training.

"The safety measures we are particularly interested in include the strict observance of all motor vehicle laws, both while the Guardsmen are on and off duty," BG Radlike said. "We make no compromise on safety. This is one factor that helps insure a productive camp."
